

Shauna McClenahan Killpack

I graduated from high school with the idea that I was going to complete four years of college in three years by going to summer school. I planned to get a degree in business education just like my mother.

Things didn't quite go that way. I did go to BYU to summer school right out of high school, but I wasn't happy there.

I continued my education at Snow College and then Utah State where I ran into Robert Killpack at the bookstore. That really changed things. We were married about eight months later.

After he graduated, we made our way to Panguitch, Utah where he had employment with the government. We had two boys there. We then went on to Salt Lake City and after that we settled in Ferron. Three more children arrived there.

I completed my education through extension classes and taught school for thirteen years.

We now live in Ivins, Utah. We are having a house built in Wellington, yes Wellington the dumpy town! My daughter and son live there.

We have served several service missions. We are presently serving an on-line mission adding social security records to Family Search.

We look forward to spending the remainder of our life with family and enjoying our surroundings in the desert and the mountains.
