Rip Parrish

Patrick Parrish's Family Stories

Patrick Parrish
April 13, 1995

English

Parrish,Rip. .25 June 1913. Rangly, Colorado. Personal Interview. Salt Lake, Utah. 8 April 1995.

I choose to write about my grandpa Parrish because he lived an exiting I guess he married my grandma Carlon when he was 16 and had 5 kids the fourth one was my dad. This story is about his life as a kid.

A few week before christmas my great grandma told my grandpa to go get a christmas tree for the family on his way out of town he spotted a bunch of nice looking christmas tree then he saw a sign that said no trespassing so he immediately left the land. No his way back to town he saw a huge ranch with a lot of good trees than he saw really good one at the front of the hose and he didn't see a sign that said no trespassing so he cut down the christmas tree my great grandma was so happy she had never had a christmas tree that look so good.

The next day my grandpa was reading the local news paper and there on the front page was a 1000 dollar reward for anyone who new who had cut down the tree in front of president Roosevelt house he quickly throw away the paper so my great grandma wouldn't see and to my great grandmas dying day she never new that her son had cut down the presidents tree this story has been past down to two generation my grandpa didn't tell this story for thirty years or so years because the reward is still good .